OUR ADVANTAGES.

The commission appointed to consider the advisability of the United States Government's establishing an armorplate plant has no authority to do more than enquire into the matter and report to Congress.

It has not yet been decided by Congress that the government will go into plate-making upon its own account. Whether it will do so or not depends largely, we suppose, upon the prices that may hereafter be exacted for government work by Mr. Carnegle. If terms can be arranged with that august poten- George Mason and the long line of patate, no plant will be established-at triots that have affirmed his declaration least, not now-but if they cannot be, and doctrine are wrong, we have here a then Congress will be compelled to buy or build an armor-plate mill. cial ermine to purposes of despotism.

There are already two large mills in existence in this country, either of which the United States might buy, for they would be well nigh useless to their owners should the government resolve to have a plant whereat to do its own work. On the other hand, should the government decide to have a plant of its own, it might fix upon a site therefor much more convenient to the ship-yards than that of either of the Pennsylvania plants. Right there comes in the hope of many of the cities that are expecting this plum to drop into their mouths, so to speak.

The requirements of a site, we take it, are that it shall have all conveniences of transportation for the shipment of its product and for the importation of such foreign ores as may be needed, and that it shall be also a market where the needful domestic ores and coal and coke may be purchased cheaply. Also, that it shall be in a locality where skilled iron-workers are at all times obtainable, Also, that it shall be within easy reach of all the ship-yards upon the Atlantic, yet safe from any enemy that might land upon that coast.

Richmond, we think, possesses many of the advantages that would be sought for in the selection of a suitable site. How the prices of coal and ores here compare with prices at competing points we do not know; but we are confident that our Chamber of Commerce will be able to lay all of the facts of the case before the commission when it comes to Richmond, as we understand that it is its purpose to do.

We are not overburdened with confidence that the McKinley party is willing to do the South justice in the distribution of its favors; nevertheless, it is our duty to try to secure them-and this armor-plate factory in particular. Newport News and Norfolk may have some advantages that Richmond does not pessess; but, per contra, we have abundant water-power, while they have none. But if Richmond cannot get this plant We heartly hope some other Virginia city may succeed in doing so. And if the plant (if there is to be one) is not to come to Virginia, then we hope it may go to some other Southern State. However, for the present, this whole question is an open one. Much depends upon whether the great Pennsylvania iron masters will or will not come to terms with the government; but let our Chamber of Commerce Committee work on hopefully. All of its investigations, all of its sittings, will be useful and in the direction of developing public spirit here. If, in this matter, we find ourselves at a disadvantage with any of our business competitors, it is well that the facts should be known and all proper efforts made to remove them. Or, if we do now really occupy an exceptionably favorable position as a manufacturing centre, we should proclaim that fact so loudly and insistently that all the world interested

JUDICIAL PRESS MUZZLING.

The latest phase of government by injunction is an attack upon the liberty of the press. At Charles City, Iowa, thers had for some time been a fight on over the postmastership, a Republican being engaged in trying to oust the Democratic incumbent. During the progress of the fight a number of letters passed between the former and Senators Allison and Gear and Representative Updegraff. The contents of the letters from the legislators mentioned were not very creditable to the three worthies, and disclosed Republican methods in a rather unenviable light, Indeed, it is stated that they showed that the two senators and the til the meeting of the Legislature and congressman were ready to become parties to a conspiracy to remove the Democratic postmaster-a public officer. But they, also showed that the Republi- Judge Taliaferro, the Judge will proceed can applicant had big State influence be- against it by mandamus, and if he files hind him, and the said applicant in his vanity permitted the letters to be read shall have from that tribunal a decision by his friends generally. In fact, their contents became the town talk, and vir- all time, tually public property.

Finally copies of the letters fell into the hands of the editor of several local papers, who announced that for the enlightenment and edification of his patrons at large, and in order to expose the conspiracy and the low state of political morality the letters reflected, he would publish them. They were not libellous, and there was no question as to their genuineness, but the putting of them into cold type was calculated to kick up a tremendous row in the Republican camp

The publication announcement threw the hankerer after the post-office flesh pots and his friends into a terrible state of mind, but quickly recovering, they hied them to a Republican judge, whom they prayed to set the injunction machinery in motion against the editor. This was promptly done, and the editor was enjoined and restrained from "in any man ner using, employing, publishing, or commenting upon any letters to plaintiff from John H. Gear, William B. Allison, and Thomas Updegraff, or any other letters from other parties to said plaintiff or any of them, either in his papers or privately. and from having anything to do with said correspondence without the consent

Never since the foundation of the republic, except immediately after the civil war, when the Southern States were satraples, has there been such a gross violation, such a dangerous violation, as this of the principle regarding the press enunciated in the Virginia Bill of Rights and which all of our statesmen have accepted as one of the great bulwarks of our liberties. The editor cannot even comment on public talk and proofs of conspiracy he has in his hands. He is absolutely muzzled. The performance of the Iowa judge is a greater, a more dangerous, outrage upon the freedom of the press and a greater menace to our liberties than were the high-handed dealings of the military satraps that were put over the southern conquered provinces, seeing that the latter made no pretence of acting under color of law. Unless

And where rests the responsibility for this and the many similar government by injunction outrages that have recently been perpetrated? On what meat have these, our judicial Caesars, fed that they have grown so great that they may with impunity whistle down the wind the spirit of the Constitution and our institutions? The answer is found in the clamor that was raised in certain quarters against the government by injunction plank in the Chicago platform. We need not look further than this for the encouragement the Federal judiciary have received to stretch injunction proceedings as contemplated under the law into gross and tyrannical license. Let those in Virginia who have joined in the clamor pause and still their voices lest government by injunction come home to our people at large in more threatening and oppressive form than it has been recently experienced in this city-lest they aid in breaking down bulwarks of liberty they may not be able to rebuild.

ILL-STARRED CONVICTS.

The crowded condition of the Virginia Penitentiary, where there are said to be Penitentiary, where there are said to be six persons to a cell, will come up for discussion at the next meeting of the Legislature. The disposal of the matter should be speedy, as there is nothing easier than to divide them into small gangs and let them work the roads, in the southern part of the State during the winter and in the northern part of the State during the summer. Nor is the State during the summer. Nor is there anything that would advance the welfare of the country more surely than good roads.-The Warrenton Virginian.

We do not think the Legislature would be disposed to disturb the present contracts with the Davis Shoe Company, but the proposed experiment might well be tried with short-term prisoners here after convicted. These might be retained in the counties where they were convicted, or in adjacent counties, and put to work in gangs along with certain misdemeanor prisoners. But so long as the contracts with the Davis Shoe Company continue-that is, so long as 1,200 or 1,300 prisoners have to be kept here—the penitentiary cells will be disgracefully crowded. The hospital, too, is grossly inadequate. There is one big room for whites and another hig room for blacks. When a man is dying in either room his sick companions cannot but witness his death struggles, and hear him fighting for breath! This is a wretched arrangement, yet for lack of room nothing better can

Whether the subjects of future convictions are to be put to work road-making or not, Virginia cannot escape just reproach unless she provides more cellroom and better hospital accommodations for the men that she sends to the penitentlary.

It is stated that Emperor Franz Josef of Austria violated the law in giving Premier Badeni permission to fight a duel. Judging from the details of the duel, Franz Josef might have avoided violating the law and gotten much more There is to be a great gathering of satisfactory results by permitting Premier Badeni to play centre-rush in

The City Ordinances-Where Are

They?

It is an ancient and very reasonable doctrine that no man is expected to ob-serve the law unless he has the means of finding out what the law is. How many citizens of Richmond know what our special municipal law is, or where they can go to learn it? The work of revising the ordinances has been dragging along for more than six years, and with-out any apparent reason for the delay, we are still awaiting for the privilege of being informed what our rights and duties are under the laws enacted by our city

This is a matter of too much impor-tance to be trifled with, and even if it should require a little extra diligence on the part of the committee who have it in charge to expedite the completion of the work, it is not easy to see where a little extra diligence could be more profit-ably exercised. CITIZEN.

The Fredericksburg Fair.

FREDERICKSBURG, VA., September 28.—(Special.)—The eleventh annual fair of the Rappahannock Agricultural and Mechanical Society began here to-day under most favorable auspices. The weather was charming, and the races unusually good, but the attendance was quite slim. The officers of the society are satisfied, however, and say the receipts show a larger crowd than is usual on tirst days. The exhibits in all the departments are larger than usual, and excellent in point of quality. The exhibit in the poultry department is exceptionally fine—the best ever had here. Fair-sized fields and a fast track made the races the attractive feature of the day. Messrs. Bernard, Doswell, J. W. Lafoe, and J. P. Corbin were the judges.

The first race was a half-mile dash. There were four horses to start. William Bernard's Miss Mansfield won. C. H. Hurkamp's Brighton, won the second race, (half-mile heats), as did the same gentleman's Princeton the hurdle race.

The Poster Girl.

The blessed Poster Girl leaned out From a pink-purpled Heaven, One eye was red, and one was green; Her bang was cut uneven; She had three fingers on her hand, And the hairs on her head were seven.

Her robe, ungirt from clasp to hem, No sunflowers did adorn;
But a heavy Turkish portiere
Was very neatly worn;
And the hat that lay along her back,
Was yellow, like canned corn.

It was a kind of wabbly wave
That she was standing on,
And high aloft she flung a scarf
That must have weighed a ton;
And she was rather tall—at least
She reached up to the sun.

She curved and writhed, and then she said, Less green of speech than blue, "Perhaps I am absurd—perhaps I don't appeal to you: But my artistic worth depends Upon the point of view."

I saw her smile, although her eyes
Were only smuggy smears;
And then she swished her swirling arms,
And wagged her gorgeous ears,
She sobbed a blue-and-green checked sob, And wept some purple tears, CAROLYN WELLS.
